

With 6,200 employees in research, teaching and administration and its unique profile, TU Dortmund University shapes prospects for the future. The interaction between engineering and natural science as well as social and cultural studies drives both technological innovations and progress in knowledge and methodology. It is not only the roughly 34,600 students who benefit from this.

The Faculty of Business and Economics at TU Dortmund University is seeking to fill the position of a

Professor (non-tenured, W1) „Economics“.

The Faculty is seeking an individual with a proven academic track-record in theoretical or empirical/econometric research in micro- or macroeconomics. The candidate is expected to have completed an excellent doctorate, produced internationally-visible publications or a job market paper publishable in leading international journals. His/her thematic focus should be related to the Faculty's existing economic research activities.

The candidate will be required to participate appropriately in teaching classes within the department's degree programs.

Applicants will also possess the requisite social and leadership skills and be willing to be involved in the development of structured research collaborations as well as academic self-governance.

Experience in third-party fund raising and engagement in doctoral training, especially in the context of the Ruhr Graduate School of Economics, are desirable.

The hiring requirements are based on § 36 HG of the State of NRW.

TU Dortmund University strives to increase the number of women in academic research and teaching and therefore strongly encourages women to apply.

Equally qualified candidates with disabilities will be given preference.

TU Dortmund University supports the compatibility of work and family life and promotes gender mainstreaming in the university community.
